OPEN HOUSE IN ANTHROPOLOGY

2018

If you are considering a major or concentration in anthropology and would like to join others for food and informal contemplation of the possibilities for undergraduate anthropology at Columbia—a broad spectrum of courses cross-cultural and interdisciplinary in spirit, studies abroad, ethnographic and thesis possibilities, departmental events, the Columbia-Barnard Undergraduate Journal of Anthropology, summer research fellowships, post-grad futures, and more—then, by all means, in the midst of this major declaration moment come to an Open House in Anthropology.

Bring your friends, questions, and curiosity...

Musing on your Major Declaration?
In search of the social? In search of difference?
Desire to write, ethnographically and otherwise?
Bring a friend.

MONDAY FEBRUARY 26, 12-2
AND
TUESDAY FEBRUARY 27, 4-6

Sheldon Scheps Library
Room 457 Schermerhorn Extension

Yes, there will be food

SEE YOU THERE!